Committed to sourcing cage-free eggs

At Kempinski Hotels, we have always taken our commitment to animal welfare extremely seriously. For us, it is a key consideration when sourcing any ingredients and produce used in restaurants, cafés and bars across our international network.

That is why we are highly committed to sourcing 100 percent cage-free eggs – shell, liquid and ingredient – by 2025 across our entire international portfolio.

As an international luxury hotelier with properties across 34 markets, many of which are located in what may be considered unusual or remote travel destinations, we recognise this may be achievable sooner in some countries than others. As such, our properties in Central European locations will lead the way on this commitment, given the conditions that allow for the usage of cage-free eggs, including supportive environments as well as the availability of this produce.

Kempinski believes our commitment to using cage-free eggs will have a lasting positive impact on animal welfare and sustainable food sourcing practices where we operate. We will continue to work with our properties and their suppliers to swiftly further this cause.
